1. [redacted] the quay located on the north side of the estuary of the Onega River [redacted] can accommodate three ships of approximately 230 feet in length. [redacted]

2. [redacted] considerable maritime traffic [redacted] entering the port. This traffic consisted of Soviet cargo vessels and barges, which proceeded upstream to a point where they could no longer be seen from the timber quay.

[redacted] The thickness of the ice [redacted] was seven inches; the entire river was packed with hummock ice. Farther down the river, solid ice was encountered; this condition prevailed for a distance of 15 miles beyond the mouth of river. The rest of the White Sea was ice free.
